Deerfield was not alone, but this sketch of her history is given as an illustration of what was going on all around her. As early as 1770 the Deerfield rebels had made up their minds for business, and had gradually come into civil power. For ten years previously the loyalists had held control of the town, but in 1770 the rebels defied the loyalists and King George and elected rebel town officers. Prominent among the men of Deerfield who were active in this movement was my grandfather, Joseph Stebbins. July 28, 1774, when Stebbins was twenty-four years old, the spirit of patriotism of the Sons of Liberty had reached such a height that preparations had been made for setting up a tall Liberty Pole upon the village street. Party spirit ran high, and little courtesy was shown on either side. There were a few Tories in town, and this Pole, which had been brought here too late in the day to be erected, was sawed asunder by one of them when darkness could conceal the actor who boastingly made record of the act in his diary. This diary is now in my possession. The next morning the rebels procured another stately tree from the forest, and planted it firmly on the Street within six rods of my grandfather s house, with a liberty flag floating defiantly therefrom. Stebbins was one of those who well knew that proceedings like these would call down upon the heads of the rebels the vengeance of one of the...
